“ Tony was a great guy that I had the pleasure to call my friend. Although we all went our separate ways early in our adolescence, I'll never forget the brief time a small group of guys from JT spent hanging out trying to learn the lessons of life. My most vivid memory with Tony was a bottle rocket and Roman candle fight we had in the pasture next to Tony's house one cold holiday night in 1973. Scotty Cates, Jimmy Stripling, Carey Black, myself and maybe a couple others could have blinded ourselves that night, but what a fun, foolish and utterly great time all of us guys had just being boys. Rest In Peace my brother. I'll see you and Scotty again one day.
