One of the best memories Tony and I often shared was when he asked me to help him wire new houses in Whitehouse during the freezing cold in the early 80's. We would run wire for a short while then get to his truck, crank up the heater and do it over and over. That is where I started learning house wiring. He and I have been friends since we both lived in Whitehouse. We worked at Trane together up until my wife and I retired in 2015. We last talked at Wences memorial...Thank God we will meet again my brother. Blessings to friends and family. We are very saddened...
