“ Debbie and I grew up together. We met for the first time in 4th grade.

When she had surgery on her back, I would get to go to her house and have lunch with her.

We made it through all the highs and lows of high school. That's when we parted our ways and continued growing up. We would go a few years without hearing from one another and then, a phone call and we were catching up on each other and picking up where we left off.

Debbie came back to Illinois for a small stretch....long enough to remember why she left. These winters are COLD!

I am so glad that she found happiness in and with Will. I could hear her love in her voice and see it in her smile.

Debbie made a difference in my life and I know she has touched the lives of others. Debbie just made Earth a better place. I will miss her.
