“ Harry and I became friends through our years of caring for our loved ones; he his wife and me my mom. I found encouragement from Harry through our many conversations at The Heights of Tyler Care Facility. Even when Harry's health began to fail and he himself became a resident there, he never failed to show concern and ask about my mother. I have fond memories of my time solving the world's problems with Harry.

“ In the 1960s Harry Smith was a frequent visitor to the nuclear rocket test site in Nevada where he befriended a young engineer, John Schinkle, who became a lifelong friend.

Harry was greatly admired by those who worked with him at the Department of Energy field office in Albuquerque. He was kind and considerate to all his associates.

Harry is remembered fondly for his kindness and good natured humor by his former associates including Jack Roeder, Ken Elliott and John Schinkle.
