“ Facebook Post on Father's Day, 2024 -

I's my dad's first Father's Day without his dad. I won't say that I know how that feels because I don't. What I do know is my papaw was a strong believer in Christ so I'm confident he is spending his eternity in heaven. Married to my grandma for over 50 years, his dedication to his family, community and deaconship at church serve as examples of his character and love. We went to the same church, and I can still see my grandparents sitting in their spot at church and hearing them singing (not the best) the hymns. Growing up, my family spent every holiday together (both my mom's side and my dad's side). Both sets of my grandparents were friends and I know not many can say that. That is something I will always be grateful for!

My Papaw was an avid chef-always making my favorites...zucchini pie, cookies, pizza, and stir-fry. He also made THE BEST homemade rolls for every thanksgiving-just ask Stormie Tuma. 🥰

After my family moved to Palestine, my grandparents quickly followed to be closer to their grandkids. My brother, Jason and I would spend countless days at their house....hanging out, spending our sick days, or falling down their stairs. 🤒 Sick days were never boring, sure we would watch The Price is Right, but my grandparents' house was like a huge museum, and you could explore it all day long....they would never care what we touched, moved around or sat on. One time, they got this crazy idea to take us to Disney World, but we wouldn't fly, we would drive and stop at EVERY historical marker between East Texas and Orlando....what an adventure that was!

My papaw kept a big camera around his neck using a big guitar strap (what we call them now)...took lots of pictures which come to think of it-I've never seen. 😂 I know for a fact that my papaw helped my brother out (even when he didn't deserve it), but he loved his grandkids no matter what and would have done anything for us.

Shortly after we moved to Tyler, here comes my papaw....he moved to the same retirement community that my grandma (my mom's mom) lived at, and in his spare time, he would take her to lunch, take her shopping, and to the grocery store (she never drove a day in her life and she LOVED to go!)

*He lived a long life full of love, family and countless memories. ❤️
❤️ ❤️*
