“ I remember so many days that me and Jeff set out not necessarily looking for trouble but seemingly always finding it. Since 3rd grade in Mrs. Humphries we were great friends. Over the years as we grew up we always found ways to have fun and never take many things too seriously. We spent many weekends staying at each other's homes or at least that's what our parents thought. I still remember the nights of going to Mazzio's where his sister would give us unlimited tokens to play all the games we could stand. As time went on we found a better and more constructive use of our energy, on the baseball field. Jeff was always the freak that was naturally better than everyone else not to mention stronger. I have never seen someone with so much raw and natural ability to do anything he wanted and do it better than everyone else. That carried over to the classroom as well. He had a gift both physically and mentally. With little or no effort he could make the highest grade in the class, even though he would never let you know that he was too smart. I guess he thought being smart was too nerdy.

I will miss Jeff and I wish that we would have been closer in adulthood but I guess God had different plans for our lives. Before his funeral service I was very sad to have lost him so soon but once the pastor said that he accepted Jesus and is a Christian my heart felt at peace.

See you in Heaven Jeff! Don't cause too much trouble until I get there.

“ Jeff and Gary were always like brothers Until we moved to Winona (when they were in High School) one was always at the other's house. We will always remember Jeff's smile and the adventures he and Gary enjoyed. We know that Jeff is in a better place and that his struggles are over, but he will certainly be missed. God calls each of us in his time. Polly and David you will be in our prayers for strength and comfort.

*Love in Christ,

“ Jeff was my best friend for nearly my entire childhood while growing up. We met in the 3rd grade at Rice Elementary and stayed close until graduating high school.

We were thick as thieves in grade school. We did everything together. We built countless pine needle forts in my backyard, we explored creeks, and rode our bikes everywhere around the neighborhood.. He was very mischievous and we often got ourselves in a lot of trouble by hanging with one another..

When I wasn't with Jeff, he was playing sports. He was a natural athlete and was on all of the top sports teams in baseball and football.

Jeff was also wickedly smart. He was one of those people who could flip through a textbook one time, and who would could recite passages verbatim. He was always placed in the Honors classes, but tried his best to hide his intelligence from his friends. He took the PSAT test in 10th grade (in which he didn't study for) and got the 2nd best score in our school, and was honored as a National Merit Finalist.

But the thing that I will miss the most about Jeff was his easygoing nature. He was just so fun and easy to be around.

I will miss Jeff greatly. May he Rest in Peace.
