“ Judge and I spent many hours together, traveling to hunting and fishing destinations, arguing about the Longhorns and Aggies, sitting in boats while catching fish, shooting doves, etc. I often chastised him for his lack of regular exercise, and his diet. His response was always the same: "Burns, you aren't going to live longer, it's just going to seem longer." He enjoyed good food and being around his friends.

We ate a lot of good bar-b-que at Louie Mueller's and Pat Gee's. Once we went to northeastern Wyoming to hunt antelope. The night before the season opened, I received a phone call advising me of a family emergency. Without hesitation, Joe said that we would leave the next morning. He drove the entire distance, spending eighteen hours behind the wheel. I don't know of another friend who would do that for me.

We'll miss him a lot, but we will always cherish the time we spent with him.
