When Joice was having an affair with Jim Willuams, his first wife met with her asking that she stop--he was married and had a family--Joice's daughter was present and didn't appear to care for Joice seeing Jim. Jim is an long-time adulterer - Joice was not the first - but worse, he was an extreme abuser! He disfigured his wife's face, and from the age of 19, he beat her and later beat his kids numerous times over the years. Her family tried several times to have an intervention and get her away from him but it didn't work. When his wife developed cancer at the young age if 51 and Jim saw that she might die, he again took up with Joice (and and her with him) as his wife was left fighting for her life. Jim was and IS very dangerous--he kept his dying wife drugged on morphine even before her last days and made sure she was buried in Tyler far away from family. After her death he began staging random comments that there was no life insurance because he didn't want money that came by way of her death - likely a lie. Immediately after her death he told his 3 kids that he had to get on with his life and be happy and was going to marry Joice and announced he wanted them to meet his mistress-to-be-wife-#2. They broke off all contact - everyone did. So Joice finally "got Jim for herself" and they lived happily ever after...until mistress #2 came along and then Joice suspiciously died. Mistress #3 finally got Jim...then she got cancer, and Jim divorced her, now mistress #5 is about to get him...and it will be quite a surprise after she says "I do". This 4th wife will find out the same deadly secret that all the other women who came after his first wife discovered...he is NOT what he seems, Jim is their worst nightmare and anyone that plays house with him may not make it out alive.

“ I met Joice in 1985 when they moved to Tyler. Andi, her daughter, and I became inseparable and still are close friends. When I was around Honey, she was always in good spirits and would make you laugh - even if you didn't want to! I remember her calm spirits and demeanor even when fussing at Jenkers or Andi. She was welcoming when I can to her house to visit and she would always ask about my children and/or my parents. She covered all the bases. I will miss her sweet spirit. XOXO Hollye Belle Minter

“ I met Joice six months ago and we became fast friends. In fact she was the only friend I had in Bullard. After talking one day we discovered that we had both had organ transplants. She told me about her heart. We compared notes about our kidneys. She would joke that she always owed her son-n-law lemon cake. I thought I could'nt tell my son no for giving me his kidney. We talked a couple of times a week and at least once a week we would pray for her daughter that has heart problems.(I'm sorry I don't no which one of you). In the short time I new Joice we seemed like old friends. I will miss her greatly. My deepest sympathy to the family. I know you have all lost a part of your heart. Mary Ann Spillman
