“ "The death of a child is the single most traumatic event in one's life. To lose a child is to lose a piece of yourself."

Love is stronger than death even though it can't stop death from happening, but no matter how hard death tries it can't separate people from love. It can't take away our memories either. Precious Lincoln will always be in our hearts and our prayers.

We pray for this precious family. As we pray we know that Lincoln is with Our Father and is happy and healthy.

“ There aren't adequate words that I can write to tell you how much you are all thought of and prayed for..my best words for you are.. turn your eyes upon Jesus, look close in His wonderful face and the things of earth will grow strangely dim, in the LIGHT of HIS GLORY and GRACE.

You will see and hold your precious baby once again..it is His promise.

I wish I could meet all of you and hug you so very tight!

*Lovingly,
Debby & Paden*

“ To the family of Lincoln Allen:

My heart and prayers go out to you. Lincoln's courage and big heart was so evident throughout his fight which I only knew about through your CarePages. Thank you for sharing Lincoln with the world. I know my life has been changed, I know his story has touched many lives....I pray the cause of his struggle will be found, in order that you may understand and even possibly save other children from this same struggle. Your strength and courage in the midst of this valley and struggle have awed and amazed me. Truly, God was with you. I pray He continue to give you strength and courage in the days to come. But please, allow yourselves the time to grieve. Yes, Lincoln is safe now, and no longer suffering, and thankfully he will never have to walk through pain and heartache that comes on this earth; but he has left a void in your family and a hole in your heart that will never go away although eventually the pain will be dulled with the passage of time. It is okay to grieve, and cry and scream if necessary. You can trust God with all your emotions....it's okay. My prayers will be with you....With deep sorrow ~ Cheryl
