“ Dear Joyce, Julie, and Anne Marie:

We are so sorry about William. We just heard about it from David Portor. He sent me an e-mail and obituary. I just lost the best friend anyone could every have. I loved William like a brother. He was more like a brother than a friend. Again, it hurts me that I cannot be there. I am still healing from my second surgery. Our prayers are with you and your family.

“ Dear Joyce, Julie, and Anne,

Tiffany called me this (Friday) afternoon.

You are in my prayers as you reflect on the journey of husband, dad, life and love as a family.

One of the joys of knowing Bill was his authenticity. He did not pretend to be anything or anyone but himself.

It was always a joy to sing with Bill, and a special event to hear him sing, "The King is Coming". Now, he knows the truth of which he sang close up and personal.

He called me about a year ago, and we had a long talk. He reminded me of a time he happened to be with me when I got a page to go to the emergency room at E. Tex. Med. Center. I think Bill and I had been visiting a church member when I got the page. I was covering weekend calls for Tom Loden, who happened to be the chaplain at that time. Anyway, Bill went with me to the E.R., and stayed as we got involved ministering to a family in crisis. (loss of life in a car wreck). He visited with some of the extended family that flooded the E.R. waiting room, and did a great job offering the presence of God's comfort to those hurting people.

One of the joys of ministry is making friends who are "kindred spirits". Bill is one of those in my life.

As you grieve Bill's passing, I pray that you also celebrate with gratitude the journey of his life and the many things you have learned from him.....and very likely will continue to learn as you reflect on the unique ways he related to each of you.

It is all a "gift"! Don't miss a second of it.

You will remain in my prayers.

Thanks be to God for the gift of Bill Morrow!

God's Blessings,

Jim
